CRUEL DEATH METED TO A COSTLY COW

Unbelievable Brutality Shown by Fiend at Buckaloo's

BULLETIN
Acting upon information gleaned through the police department, county officials this afternoon hoped to be able to ascertain the identity of the person who some time yesterday afternoon brutally killed a fine cow belonging to the C. C. Buckaloo herd. It was learned at noon that the police had been notified yesterday afternoon of the queer actions of a man, residing in the west end of the city, who according to Chief Van Bibber, was said to be acting as if demented. The police department was notified of the actions of the west end resident in a report telephoned to the station, it was said. The man was said to be running wildly along the river bank in the vicinity of the city's dumping grounds, where are located on the Buckaloo property.

One of the most inhuman acts that has come to the attention of Lee county law enforcing officers in years, was reported to Sheriff Elliott C. Rising this morning when he was summoned to the farm of ex-Superintendent C. C. Buckaloo of Nelson township, where a valuable Holstein cow had been brutally killed. The investigation was begun at once and information is being sought by which it is hoped to unravel the mystery.

One of the most valuable Holstein cows of the Buckaloo herd was evidently led from the pasture yesterday afternoon to the enclosing fence, where the wires were cut. The animal was presumably led through a neighbor's pasture to the river bank where the cruel act was committed. A rope was tied about the cow's hind leg, drawing that member up tightly, and a hitch was made about its neck. The rope was then thrown over the branch of a willow tree above five feet from the ground and pulled tightly. In this position the throat of the animal was cut and the carcass was abandoned in that position, where the valuable animal struggled and died.

Carcass Found Today.
The cow was missed when the cattle were driven in from the pasture last evening and a search was made. Darkness prevented the location of the animal last night and Mr. Buckaloo renewed his investigation this morning and found the place in the fence where the wires had been cut and, following the tracks, located the dead animal. The sheriff's office was notified at once and an investigation started.

Sheriff Risley and Chief Deputy Fred Richardson, who made the first investigation, are seeking to find some trace of a man who was seen carrying ropes or a sack in the vicinity of the Buckaloo farm yesterday. The investigation at noon had disclosed the presence of a tall, roughly dressed man, who was seen walking east on the Rock Island road in the vicinity of the Buckaloo farm late yesterday afternoon. The investigating officers are of the belief that the act was that of some person whose mind is affected or with criminal tendencies. Mr. Buckaloo was unable to recall this morning any persons who might hold a personal grudge against him to the extent of killing the animal with a revengeful motive.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Cortright returned last night from a pleasant automobile trip through Minnesota, going as far as Rochester, and enjoying the trip around the lakes.

LACK OF INTEREST IN DIXON FOOTBALL TEAM CAUSES REAL BACKERS TO ABANDON PLANS

Chances for Dixon's football team have waned to a point where former backers of the sport have abandoned all hopes for organizing a squad this year. The interest which has provided Dixon with a good team for five seasons, is not apparent and while hopes were held out for a manifestation of support of a team with the arrival of cooler weather and the opening of the season throughout the country, the failure of this very essential spirit, has led to the abandonment of all plans.

GLENN COLLETT BEATEN BY MISS WILSON, CHICAGO

Unfavorable Weather is Cause Champion's Downfall Today

Haverford, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Glenna Collett was dethroned as title holder in the third round of the women's national Golf Championship at Merion today by youthful Virginia Wilson of Chicago 2 up and one to play.

Miss Collett's defeat came as one of the biggest surprises of a tournament which had already produced many upsets. Her conqueror, a slim, smiling girl of 26 from the midwest, who never seemed to take the match too seriously, came from behind with a sensational rush on the last three holes after being down to Miss Collett over most of the route, winning the 15th and 16th to become 2 up and then halving the 17th hole for victory.

The unfavorable weather conditions seemed partly responsible for Miss Collett's defeat. Frequently the west clubs turned in her hands carrying her ball into traps.

It was such a break which turned the tide in favor of the Chicago lass on the fifteenth where she went to the front for the first time. Here Miss Collett shanked her ball into a trap. It came partially buried and with an almost impossible shot she lost the hole.

Miss Collett's club turned in her hands again at the sixteenth where she put her ball into a quarry to become two down. The seventeenth was then halved, ending the match.

To Dedicate Chapel of "Church of God"

The chapel of the Church of God has been completed and turned over to the congregation, who will attend dedication services next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The chapel, which is located on West Morgan street, will house all of the regular Sunday services. Rev. F. L. Austin of Oregon will preach the dedicatory sermon. "Our Consolation unto God's High Calling." The general public is invited to join the congregation in this and all of the Sunday services.

Pittsfield, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Thomas Murrin, 53, truck farmer, was found dead on a pile of driftwood in Buckeye Creek near his home south of there late yesterday afternoon. Murrin had not been seen for several days. An inquest will be held this afternoon.

METHODISTS SHUT DOORS TO PRESS AS FIGHT BREWS

Stormy Debates Marked Discussion of Policy Declaration

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Methodism rose in organized protest against condemnations of the "two-gun" preacher, as contained in the public policy committee's report, when the suggested resolutions were torn apart and substituted at the morning session of the Rock River Conference today.

Leading the attack upon the passive attitude of ministers, Rev. Elmer Williams of Chicago, characterized by his associates as a "raiding" preacher, declared that inasmuch as laymen had submitted to the bridges of political infidelity, and gambling and vice was allowed to run rampant, the Methodist minister should assume the responsibility of leaving his confined church duties and enter the "jungles" of the big city.

Is Less Specific
In eliminating of the first paragraphs of the public policy committee's report, the conference voted to place a less specific definition of a minister's duties in its place. The change was made because of misinterpretation which might result from the suggested limitations of the minister.

Prolonged and heated argument which ensued when the committee's report of yesterday was re-read, indicated that discussion of the prohibition referendum and political candidates entered in the race for U. S. senator would be even more violent than those occurring in the morning session, the stormiest of the conference so far.

Fight on Union Labor
Union labor, endorsed by the same committee, also found some opponents who attempted to gain the passage of an amendment advocating rights of non-union men. Charges that gangsters ruled certain organized labor groups in Chicago, were hurled across the convention floor by ministers.

But in connection with the labor dispute the conference again resorted to a compromising action by referring the writing of an amending report to a committee of three.

In defending the report prepared by the committee of which he is chairman, Rev. A. M. Pennywell declared that he could not reconcile Christian principles with the action of a Methodist preacher comingling whiskey and a gun in order to spread the gospel of Christ. "Snooping around roadhouses and houses of questionable reputation in such disguise," he said, "was hardly one of the duties of an exponent of the Christian religion."

Behind Closed Doors
Irritated by publicity accompanying the public policy committee's report, the conference voted to discuss other proposed resolutions behind closed doors this afternoon. The committee's report did not reflect the attitude of the entire conference, leaders stated, and until an amicable agreement was reached.

WAS DYING WISH OF HORNSBY'S MOTHER THAT CARDINALS' STAR REMAIN WITH TEAM IN SERIES

Great Player Suffers Loss of Mother in Hour of Triumph

(Sport News on Page 6)
New York, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The dying wish of Mrs. M. D. Hornsby that her son Rogers stick to his post as manager and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals and lead his team against the New York Yankees in the world series is to be carried out.

The manager had contemplated a race to the bedside of his mother in Austin, Texas, that would have kept him out of the first two games of the classic starting here Saturday. The mother, who had watched from an invalid's bed for the past eleven years the steady march of her son to baseball leadership, died yesterday. Her son was informed that her last wish was that he stay with his team. A telegram to Mrs. Rogers Hornsby from Austin had much to do with his decision. It was signed "The Folks" and said:

"Stay with Rogers. He needs you. All is done here."

The spirits of the Cardinal players, downcast at the news of Mrs. Hornsby's death, and the possibility that their leader would be out of the lineup, rose after his decision to stay.

Players Sympathize
They spent the morning and early afternoon in practice at the Yank Stadium while Hornsby remained in his hotel room attempting to decide between conflicting calls to duty. The men learned of Mrs. Hornsby's death when they returned from the field and after a silent evening meal, expressed their sympathy to the manager.

Sorrow over the death of Hornsby's mother was also expressed by Miller Huggins, John Heydler and Commissioner Landis. "Hornsby," Landis said, "will have one of the hardest fights a man ever had to get hold of himself. A boy feels deeply the loss of his mother, but I think a man feels it even more. I am deeply sorry for him."

Christian Fundamental Association Meets Here

The annual Bible conference and business meeting of the Illinois Christian Fundamentals Association will be held in the Grace Evangelical church in this city October 13 to 21. Prominent speakers on Fundamentalism will be present. Rev. W. R. Newell, noted Bible teacher and preacher; Rev. Wm. McCarroll, pastor of the well-known Congregational church of Cicero; Rev. J. O. TARIFF TO FORE AS ISSUE COMING GENERAL ELECTION

Senator Butler Predicts Some Changes, Upward, in Schedules

Washington, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Another wave rippled today in the ocean of campaign arguments ebbing and flowing between republican and democratic spokesmen, whose activities are concentrated on the November elections which will decide control of the seventieth congress.

After breakfast and luncheon engagements with President Coolidge at the White House, Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee, brought the tariff to the fore with a prediction that some of the Fordney-McCumber schedules now in effect would be revised upward at the coming short session of congress; while Senator P. G. Gerry, chairman of the democratic senatorial committee, in a statement from his home state of Rhode Island, accused republican managers of "misrepresenting the past and the present and showing no ability to formulate a program for the future."

WILSON'S OPINION

After a conference here with democratic leaders, William B. Wilson, former Secretary of Labor and senatorial nominee of that party in Pennsylvania, had a different view of campaign issues, declaring that the dominant one in the keystone state is the expenditure of republican senatorial candidates in the primary which was won by Representative William S. Vare, for whom he predicted defeat.

Out in Ohio, Senator F. B. Willis, republican, who is opposed for reelection by former Senator Allee Pomerene, democrat, asserted in a campaign speech that the democratic aim in November is to hamstring President Coolidge and that "1926 is only a preliminary to the big battle in 1928."

G. O. P. in "Fine Shape"

While declining to reveal the subjects of the two conferences, with President Coolidge, Senator Butler said that the republican campaign is in "fine shape" and that he anticipates that the administration and its policies would be given the support of republican majorities in the senate and house in the 70th congress.

Senator Gerry, however, said that "it is significant that President Coolidge now is very anxious to be regarded as outside the campaign."

"Several days ago," the democratic chairman continued, "Senator Lawrence Phillips, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, announced that the 'sole issue' this year is whether the electors wanted to sustain President Coolidge. Then he dined with President Coolidge and the result was Senator Phillips made a new announcement of the campaign issues, and the fate of Mr. Coolidge was not mentioned among them. It is too much to suppose that Mr. Coolidge told Senator Phillips he did not want his fate determined by elections that give every promise of resulting in a democratic landslide."

Prosperity in East

Senator Gerry reiterated his prediction that there would be "soup kitchens" in New England to feed unemployed factory workers this winter, but Senator Butler, opposed in November by former Senator D. I. Walsh, denied the truth of the democratic contention that there is no prosperity in Massachusetts.

"Our democratic friends," Chairman Butler remarked, "are always scoring victories in July, August and September and then promptly losing in November and in the present case they are playing absolutely true to form."

Senator Gerry commented on the most recent court decision in the naval oil reserve lease litigation, adding that "surely the country is not expected to forget the records of certain republican administrators in jail, under indictment or on trial for misfeasance and malfeasance in office."

The democrats, Chairman Butler said, "are rather annoyed over our prosperity issue, but it seems to appeal to the people."

"One of the weaknesses of our betwixt-term congressional elections," he added, "is that in many cases local issues transcend national, and we thus elect national officers on local platforms. It is wholly possible that the democratic introduction of Coolidge as an issue may change that situation."

"Prohibition," he concluded, "is not a principal issue in Massachusetts."

Mrs. Conrad Salzman and Miss Louise Myers have returned from an enjoyable week end visit in Chicago with friends.

ATHLETIC UNION DENIES BARRING HOFF FROM U. S.

Suit Started by Norse Pole Vaulter Big Surprise

(Sport News Page 6)
New York, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Flat denial that any influence whatever was brought to bear by the Amateur Athletic Union on Immigration authorities to have Charlie Hoff expelled from the country was made today in response to reports that the Norwegian athlete had sued the A. A. U. for $100,000.

Word of Hoff's suit came as a surprise to officials of the A. A. U. among them F. W. Rubien, secretary treasurer, named with W. C. Frust of Boston and Herbert S. Weaver of Los Angeles in Hoff's action.

"Neither I nor anyone else in authority in the A. A. U. has had anything to do with the action of Immigration officials who notified Hoff his time limit here expired Oct. 15," said Mr. Rubien. "We are not concerned whether Hoff stays here or not. The A. A. U. washed its hands of his case when it suspended him last spring as a result of irregularities in the financial end of his tour."

At the office of Immigration Commissioner Day at Ellis Island it was said a letter had been sent to Hoff at Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 22, informing him of the action taken by the Immigration authorities at Washington.

Kewanee Man is Elected Congregational Chief

Moline, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Rev. C. F. Fisher of Kewanee was last night elected moderator of the Rock River-Bureau Association of Congregational Churches at the annual meeting held here Sunday.

His successor, Dr. J. J. Day of Moline, Rev. John E. Walker of Moline was re-elected registrar.

A total of 35 Scouts have registered to make the trip but there is a shortage of cars to carry them. It was estimated at noon that four cars could care for the remaining number of boys and any who have cars to use on the trip are requested to communicate with Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Safe after 121 hours of nerve racking imprisonment in the damp depths of the Pabst Iron Mine, 43 gizzily men saw daylight from hospital beds today for the first time in almost a week.

Most of the 43 miners entombed 500 feet under ground last Friday by a shaft cave-in, which killed three mine electricians, were brought to the surface shortly before midnight, ending one of the greatest rescue efforts in mining annals.

Today the men were recuperating from their harrowing experience. They were given light foods, replacing their diet of birch bark tea brewed over improvised stoves, made from lunch pails. Birch bark was stripped from mine reinforcements and seepage water was plentiful.

May Go Home Tonight

Most of the men, attending physicians said, will be able to go to their homes by tonight.

Rescue was effected through hundreds of feet of underground shafts and laterals, some hurriedly constructed and others weakened and made unsafe by the cave-in.

First to reach the imprisoned men was George Hawes of Chicago, safety expert of the Pullman Company, and a former employee of the mine. He was greeted by Tom Trewartha, a shift boss, who with two miners were "on guard duty" while their companions slept. Hawes was followed by Captain Gust Erickson in charge of the Pabst Mine for the Oliver Iron Mining Company. Captain Harry Byrne of the Tilden Mine at Bessemer, Mich., and Oscar Olson, chief engineer of the Oliver Company, who made their way through the dangerous rescue passage.

"How are you?" Hawes asked Trewartha.

"We are all O. K. Forty-three men all right," Trewartha replied.

Hawes shouted the news to his companions who were at various places in the shaft. They in turn relayed it and soon those on the surface knew that all were "alive and well."

Took Turns at Cigar
It was not long until all the imprisoned men were awake and rejoicing. All took turns puffing a lone cigar Hawes had in his pocket.

Soup, coffee, tobacco and other articles to make the men as comfortable as possible pending their removal to the surface, were immediately dispatched. Meanwhile workers started making the rescue passage safer with heavy timbers.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night Samuel F. Synkelman, 38, father of eight children, emerged. He was the first of the men to come to the surface. Ten thousand persons were jammed about the shaft mouth. Synkelman, covered with red iron ore, was taken to the mine rescue car for examination. Later after a few words with members of his family, he went to the hospital.

All Ironwood Happy

All of the men were given a preliminary examination by a doctor who visited them in their subterranean abode. They declared they were all right, but officials thought it best that all go to the hospital. Families of each were permitted to spend a little time with them.

None of the entombed men had any hope. They took care to keep their watches running and knew they had been imprisoned five days. Each 24 hours a mark was placed on a piece of timbering indicating that another day had passed.

Harry Wren, the "Salvation Army Minner," often led his fellow prisoners in gospel meetings, singing and praying.

That efforts were being made to rescue them was known to the men. (Continued on Page 2)

Friends Surprised Mrs. W. O. Dempsey

A company of friends enjoyably surprised Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Dempsey, 610 Dixon avenue, Monday afternoon, as a farewell courtesy, as Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey are preparing to move to Chicago and expect to leave next Monday for their new home there. On Monday the friends who gathered at the Dempsey home arrived with provisions for a sumptuous picnic supper which all enjoyed very much, spending a happy evening afterward. All regret the departure of the Dempseys very much and hope that they will often return to visit in Dixon. The guests in attendance at the party included the following: Mrs. Hugh Keenan and children, Mrs. Ernest Whitebread and children, Mrs. Milton Vaughn and children, Mrs. J. Cratty, Mrs. John Collins, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Kate Belmont, Mrs. F. L. Hatch, Mrs. F. W. Hatch, Mrs. John Scrivens, Mrs. Will Scrivens, Mrs. Kate Rock, Mrs. Lizzie Keenan, Mrs. Will Hanson, Mrs. Emil Jean-guenat, Miss Emma Newman, Miss Lillian Skeffington, Miss Mary Finnegan, Will Odenthal, James Penny, Ed. Finnegan, William Stanley.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

BREAKFAST—Halves of grape fruit, cereal, thin cream, crisp broiled bacon, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of mushroom soup, croustons, lettuce and graham bread sandwiches, baked peaches, cocoa.

DINNER—Boiled salmon with egg sauce, potatoes in parsley butter, jelly vegetable salad, cantaloupe mousse, vanilla cookies, bran bread, milk, coffee.

The small potatoes one is sure to find in the bottom of the basket are best to use in parsley butter. Large ones must be cut in small, uniform pieces and are not half as attractive as the naturally small ones.

A jellied vegetable salad is an excellent way to use up bits of left-over vegetables. A few tablespoons fulls of cooked carrots, beets and beans molded in a lemon jelly with crisp pieces of celery make an appetizing salad.

Cantaloupe Mousse.
 One and 1/2 cups cantaloupe pulp, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, four tablespoons cold water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 cups whipping cream.

Soften gelatin in cold water for ten minutes. Dissolve over boiling water. Add sugar, lemon juice and dissolved gelatin to melon pulp and stir until sugar is dissolved. Put in a pan of ice water and stir frequently until mixture thickens. Fold in cream whipped until stiff and turn into a mold. Pack in four parts ice to one part salt and let stand four hours.

Griesie-Baker Wedding Wednesday

A simple yet very pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Anna Griesie, 505 Galena ave., when her daughter, Miss Mabel Eulla Griesie, and Carl B. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Baker of Monroe Center, Ill., were married.

The marriage was solemnized in the presence of thirty guests, relatives and intimate friends the Griesie home being prettily decorated for the occasion.

Rev. A. W. Carlson, pastor of the Methodist church performed the single ring service, the ceremony taking place in a bower of green and white. White streamers in a graceful canopy with white wedding bells and ferns formed a most attractive background for the ceremony.

As the bridal party assumed their places Mrs. John Krug, who presided at the piano, played the Bridal Chorus from Lehergrin.

The young couple were attended by Mrs. Mildred Thompson, sister of the bride and by Albert Baker, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was becomingly attired in Alice blue Nannette satin. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Her matron of honor, Mrs. Thompson, wore pink georgette.

At the close of the ceremony Mrs. Krug played Mendelssohn's Wedding March and the guests congratulated the young couple. A delicious two course wedding luncheon was then served in the dining room, where the decorations which were in pink and white, were exceptionally pretty. The pink and white bride's cake formed the attractive centerpiece. The luncheon was served by the Misses Alice Lucky of Ashton, Anna Gueffroy, of Dixon; Miss Lela Baker of Monroe Center, and Mrs. Charles Osborne of Rochelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker left on an auto trip to Wisconsin to visit in Portage and other cities for ten days or so. The bride's traveling costume was very pretty in dark blue and tan. They will be at home after the fifteenth of October on a farm near Monroe Center.

Out of town guests included Mrs. C. M. Mangan of Chicago, Mrs. C. G. Lucky and daughter Alice of Ashton; Miss Lela Baker and brother Albert Baker of Monroe Center, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Osborne of Rochelle. The parents of Mr. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Baker, were unable to attend the wedding yesterday because of the illness of Mrs. Baker.

The bride has been for some time a clerk in the Campbell Drug Store in Dixon and has many friends here who regret her departure from this city, but who wish her all happiness in her new home. The bridegroom who is an industrious young farmer, also has many friends who join those of the bride in extending best wishes to the couple at this time.

County Conference Of Women's Clubs

A County Conference of the Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth Congressional Districts of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be held in the Rockford Woman's Club Building, October 6th, convening at 10:00 o'clock and continuing through the day. The First Vice President, Mrs. Marc Fowler, will preside and give an address on "Loyalty" and she will be assisted in arranging and presenting the program by the three district presidents, Mrs. Richard Barr, Mrs. Roy Hoadley and Mrs. Florence Ray Stroh. The presidents of all the counties represented will have a place on the program. The state president, Mrs. Walter Seymour, and the General Federation Director Mrs. George Palmer will be guests of the conference and will bring a message from the State and General Federation. A number of the chairmen of the state departments of work will present their plans of work for the new club year. Special musical numbers will be offered by Rockford talent and a fifty cent luncheon will be served in the building. Chairman of District departments of work and chairmen of standing and special committees throughout the three districts are urged to attend all sessions. Officers and members of individual clubs and anyone interested in the work of the Federation will be cordially welcomed.

Miscellaneous Shower For Miss Griesie

On Monday evening Mrs. Edward Thompson and Miss Anna Gueffroy entertained with a prenuptial miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Mabel Griesie, at the Thompson home on Van Buren avenue. The home was decorated with pink and white streamers and garden flowers.

Games were the amusement for the evening. At the game of hearts Miss Anna Gueffroy won the first favor and the consolation favor was awarded to Miss Alice Lucky of Ashton. Delicious refreshments were served at quartet tables.

Many useful and appropriate gifts were received by the guest of honor, who is now Mrs. Carl Baker of Monroe Center, Ill.

PLAIDS

No getting around it, every woman must have her plaid coat. It's the one breath of new life in women's wear for several seasons. How much is that coat? and that? and that? Thus most of you.

"How Much"?

How much will you pay? How much service do you expect of a coat? Thus we should ask you.

The selling price of anything is only an arbitrary figure based on costs. But the value of anything, particularly of a coat, lies in the satisfaction it gives you in the surety of its style, the fineness of its quality, the excellence of its tailoring and the length of time it will serve you well.

At whatever price you wish to pay we can give you coats that measure up bountifully to every gage of choice.

Luxury Coats

Very practical luxuries are the coats we show at $69 to $125. Very sensible investments, for they're the finest of everything—materials, furs, trimmings, workmanship—reflecting distinction upon women who must "dress up" to the leadership they enjoy in social and business circles.

Proud? Any merchant 'd be proud who could display so well assembled a range of coats for women of every size from the prevalent boyish five-footer up to still womanly six-footers, and then some.

For Extremes of Size

Proud? Come in and give us a chance to justify it by adding to your own pride of appearance.

Snappy plaids and tweeds for the more vigorous activities of little women; rich cloths and semi-napped goods for the more important affairs.

And for the oversized—up-and-down and round-about—coats not a whit less behind in conception of style and fine workmanship.

HUGH S. MAGILL

One has but to look over the list of the group that is backing the candidacy of Hugh S. Magill, the new independent candidate for United States Senator, to realize the true motive of this attempt the scuttle the good ship G. O. P. in Illinois. (For common sense should show that it could be aimed at nothing else.)

The candidacy of Mr. Magill can injure no one but the Republican nominee, Col. Frank L. Smith. None of his votes will come from Mr. Brennan's supporters. Mr. Rosenwald, one of those who are endorsing Mr. Magill, says he is not a practical politician. All we have to say to that is that if he is a Republican he has certainly proven his point, but that if he wants to see Mr. Brennan elected he is going about it in the only way that could efficiently work toward such a result.

There are always malcontents, radicals and constitutional trouble makers who are standing by ever vigilant for an opportunity to create chaos and disturb the even tenor of things if they can project themselves into the public eye for only a brief moment by so doing. The public cost of this enjoyable prominence is something they can't be bothered with. Most of the group that are running around getting in front of newspaper cameras in Mr. Magill's behalf are either of that peculiar type of citizen, or else they are secretly anxious to have Mr. Brennan represent Illinois in the United States Senate. A vote for Magill is about as good as a vote for Brennan.

Some Republican wet interests, including a powerful section of the press, being more yet than Republican, hope Mr. Brennan is elected. They haven't the nerve to support him openly so they will aid him by attacking his opponent, Col. Smith, through this "Independent" candidate.

The attempt to squeeze Mr. Brennan through a tight hole by a minority vote will not be successful, in the humble opinion of The Telegraph. Republican voters will be loyal to the decision of the majority of the party and will support Col. Smith with the enthusiasm his candidacy deserves. Illinois Republicans are familiar with the under-handed methods of certain factions who attempt to destroy political leaders who do not bow to them by venomous and unfounded scandal charges. They know that Col. Smith's splendid record of service and achievement in public work makes him the outstanding candidate for the United States Senate. They suspect that Mr. Magill is being groomed, not as a real entry in the senate race, but as somebody's goat.

As to Mr. Magill we are sorry to see him in this position. We have known Mr. Magill when he was a man of good judgment and high ideals. So far as we know he is still a man of high ideals.

WHISTLE REFORM.

Just why no politician has thought to ride into office on a platform of locomotive whistle reform we do not know. The railroads have been attacked from all other angles. We may expect it yet, for it was not until the railroads themselves began equipping their cars with safety coupling devices that we sought to compel them to do it. When the railroads began equipping passenger engines with electric headlights, the politician began demanding that they be put on all switch engines. We have seen legislative bills introduced imposing a penalty of $5 a day for every day of railroad failed to deliver a piece of baggage, even though said baggage were only a pair of overalls. We have seen a bill requiring the railroad company to keep passenger stations at 70 degrees temperature, which would be all right in the winter, but not so easy in the summer.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad now is baiting the politician again. It is going to equip some of its locomotives with a "chime" whistle. E. K. Silcox, the designer, describes it as "soft as the woodwinds of a symphony orchestra," whatever that is.

It is said further that although the "chime" whistle is mellow, it can be heard as far as the screech of the one now in use.

Now we may look for the politician who will demand that all switch engines be equipped with the chimes. Imagine what an appeal that will be. We can discard the radio and let the engine crew furnish us our evening program, "soft as the woodwinds of a symphony orchestra."

A bachelor is a man who is so selfish he even wants to keep all his troubles for himself.

The reason some merchants have to charge so much is they have to charge everything.

Her Own Way.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

AN ANGRY WOMAN

I looked over to a table slightly screened by a big fern on the other side of the room, and saw a woman who seemed very much agitated. Mamie, noticing my glances, whispered, "It's Mrs. Tremaine, and she is pale with anger about something." Then I realized that the lady was not talking about our party as a whole, but about Mamie.

She knows all about Buddy's love, for Mamie, I said to myself, and she has stayed here while he went back to New York so that she might, if possible, make trouble for her. I had never seen a woman whose face was so contorted with hate and anger, but I tried to look away.

"I wonder what is the matter with Mrs. Tremaine," asked Joan, innocently, "and who is that man with her?"

"It's Gordon Denning," answered Jerry, after he too had turned and glanced at the other table. "I am certain of one thing," he continued, "if I were Mr. Tremaine I wouldn't want my wife playing around with that man. Why, he is a drunkard and a dope fiend. I wonder where Buddy is tonight?"

"He has gone back to New York," said Mamie, impulsively, and then she blushed—for the moment she had forgotten that she was not supposed to know Buddy.

Mrs. Tremaine bowed very cordially to Joan, she snubbed the rest of us, and even raised her eyebrows to her friend, as asking her if she really knew the character of the people she was entertaining.

TOMORROW—A Cruel Act.

IN NEW YORK

New York—What has become of the befuddled, belligerent male of yesterday.

Time was when the tattoo parlors of the Manhattan waterfront braced displayed signs reading "Black Eyes Painted—50 Cents."

Time was when there was scarce a barber shop on the Bowery and the East Side, but displayed such a card.

Strolling about the other day I found these cards missing from the shop of the most famous of waterfront black-eye painters.

"How come?" I inquired.

"What's the use? No business any more. I don't know whether these birds are proud of having black eyes or whether there ain't no more fights. I give it up. They was always a sailor comin' in. He hated to show his gang that someone give him a sock in the eye. Just don't get 'em any more. Sailor seem a quiet lot nowadays. Aw, the whole bunch is goin' soft."

So he's reformed.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

has sprung up in connection with the Alpine "sun ray" manipulators.

It has been linked, without any intent upon the part of the ray doctors, with the sinister drug traffic.

Everyone knows, or has heard, of the drug addict's pallor. For years it has been a brand easily recognized by the sleuths. It has been though ineradicable.

But Broadway "sun ray" parlors produce a tan within a few moments, and I am told that addicts far and near have been rushing to adopt this disguise.

A detective on the New York narcotic squad, meeting an old-timer on the street and noting his healthy complexion, was startled.

"Reformed?" inquired the officer.

"Sure," lied the addict. "Got hold of a little money and been retiring in the country."

That night the addict was picked up in a side street. But he still had his sunburn.

A prominent Manhattan playwright and poet of my acquaintance had been fascinated for years by tales of crooked card sharps on trains and steamers. Returning from Europe recently he set aside $100 and determined to get a close-up of their operations.

Sure enough, one day out a man braced him in the smoking room and asked him if he'd like to play "a little game." The playwright heartily consented, sat in the pame, and won $17.

The old stuff, he thought. They'd let him win the first time, but the next night they'd "take him." So upon the following evening he prepared to be trimmed. He cleaned up $38. Thus is continued until the last night of the voyage.

Now, thought he, they'll give me a royal picking. But, no, again he won. By this time he was thoroughly perplexed.

As he was about to go down the gang plank he saw one woman nudge another and say in tones intended for his ears: "Yeh, there goes the card shark that cleaned Joe out of $76."

So he's reformed.

Tells of Earlier Music Transmission

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Dancing to music broadcast from a distant city did not originate with radio but was done forty years ago when concerts at Madison Square garden in New York City were sent to the Morristown, N. J. home of Angus S. Hibbard, former vice president of the Chicago Telephone Company.

"In these early days of long distance work," Mr. Hibbard said, "I had the privilege of directing quite a lot of experimental work in what we have now come to know as broadcasting. Some experimental work had been done in the very early days when I was in Milwaukee, over a grounded line which we were trying to operate between Milwaukee and Chicago. A Blake transmitter mounted in a banjo head had been placed in the Central Music Hall in Chicago and we, in Milwaukee, heard parts of a concert given by the Apollo Musical Club in Chicago.

Later on in New York with our first metallic circuits we placed long distance transmitters in the Madison Square Garden where the Johann Strauss Orchestra was giving a series of summer concerts. A crude form of long distance receiver was developed with a small horn attached and this music was well transmitted that we frequently danced to it at my residence in Morristown, N. J., a distance of about forty miles. S. J. Larhed, then of the Engineering Department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, set up this experimental apparatus.

"In 1921 we placed a series of transmitters on the stage at the New York Lyceum and concerts given by the Theodore Thomas Orchestra were heard at long distances. Transmitters were also placed in several theaters and many will recall hearing the splendid voice of Lillian Russell singing the Grand Duchess. The wonderful developments by engineers in later years in the way of loud speakers, "boosters," loaded circuits and many details which have carried telephone transmissions into the air under the general term "Radio" had their small beginnings in the years I have indicated."

Glenna Scores Easy Victory this Morning

Haverford, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Glenna Collett defending her title as woman's national golf champion, scored an easy victory in her second round match today against Mrs. Norman Hood of Wilmington 8 up and 6 to play.

Miss Collett played the twelve holes of the contest in two strokes under women's par, winning two of the last three holes with birdies. She was long and straight from every tee, while her putting was uniformly good throughout the match.

Virginia Wilson of Chicago was the third player to pass her second round test successfully, the midwestern star scoring over Rosalie Knapp of New York 4 and 3.

CROPS OF APPLES RAISED THIS YEAR OVER BOUNTEOUS

Many Likely to Go Un-picked Because of Low Prices

Washington, D. C.—Bounteous nature played a low-down trick on Illinois farmers in producing apples so abundantly this year that the price has been forced down below the cost of marketing them.

Not in recent years has there been anything like the apple crop that is now about ready for the consumer. The Department of Agriculture estimates an output of something more than 42,000,000 barrels, about $900,000 barrels greater than last year's yield, which was well above the average.

The yield in Illinois is estimated at approximately 8,085,000 bushels, an increase of about 15 per cent, over 1925.

Commercial producers have appealed to the federal Department for assistance in marketing the crop at a price that at least will cover the cost of picking and handling, and the Department declares it will do what it may, but has little hope that in the face of a staggering output anything of a practical nature can be accomplished.

Many May Go Unpicked.
So far as the average farmer is concerned, it is probable that he will not go to the trouble of picking his apples. He will use a portion and turn his stock into cash to dispose of the remainder. The current market price offers no encouragement to put in time and money gathering fruit that the market cannot assimilate and which is bringing prices that are probably the lowest in history.

Farmers throughout the state, according to the Department of Agriculture, are offering to deliver apples in truckloads at prices as low as 25 cents per bushel. Large consumers of apples are stocking up with excellent grades at prices ranging even lower than advertised prices.

Apples are further handicapped by an unprecedentedly large output of all sorts of fruits and berries, which have been obtainable at prices lower than usual. The result is that the demand for apples is perhaps below normal.

While the farmer whose apples are merely incidental to his production plan will accept the situation complacently and permit his crop to rot in the orchards, it is a vastly more serious problem that confronts the commercial grower, whose sole dependence is in his orchard. Unless consumption is materially increased low prices are expected to prevail for the entire marketing period, making it expedient for many growers to pick and ship fruit.

Salesman Rides a High Wheeled Bike

Chicago—(AP)—Hubert K. Oram, salesman for a house manufacturing firm, still rides a bicycle with a saddle perched six inches above a wheel fifty nine inches in diameter. Every year since 1881, when he bought it at a price he says was later learned to be many times its cost, he has celebrated national holidays by riding about the city astride his beloved "bike."

That is one way in which Mr. Oram keeps green the memory of his youth, when he had lively adventures with the extraordinary vehicle then termed as "ordinary."

"Hundreds participated," he said, "in the amateur high-wheel races. The most fun I had racing, though, was in an impromptu test of speed with Tom Hunter's fast little black trotting horse. The policeman used to keep the 'ordinaries' off the boulevards so they wouldn't scare the horses, but fortunately no policeman saw me that day."

"I held the lead for a while, and then I began to tire and the little black horse was about to pass me. I drew in close to him, scaring him so he tried to swing into a gallop. I repeated that maneuver each time he crowded me, and Hunter was unable to pass."

"Consumers," said Tom, with his eastern-Ohio-Yankee accent, "if you'd raced me fair I'd have beaten ye."

"The high-wheel riders were a fraternity of spontaneous fellowship. It was 'Hello, with hand unlifted in cordial greeting, every time they passed one another, men the safeties as we called the modern low-hung bicycles, came into vogue, the bicyclists sped past as if they were too proud to know you. They seemed to go more to the left as they got nearer the ground."

"Perhaps it was because there were more of them that there was less sense of comradeship. At any rate when the Chicago river jack-knife bridge was open during rush hours the safety would be lined up for a mile and a half, waiting for the chance to cross."

STABILIZATION OF OTHER CROPS IS DEMONSTRATED

Extension Specialist of U. of Illinois Makes Report

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 30—(AP)—As in former years, the stabilizing effect of having several important sources of income on the corn belt farm this year was again the high light of 14 farm management tours which the farm organization and management department of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, in cooperation with county farm advisers, conducted to give interested farmers a first hand insight into some of the principles and practices of successful farm management. It is reported by R. R. Hudelson, extension specialist of the department.

Sixty successful farms in central and northern Illinois counties were visited. Despite the floods and delayed threshing, approximately 500 farmers attended the tours. All of the farms visited are among the 1,100 whose operators kept financial records last year in the farm accounting project of the agricultural college.

Operators of the 60 farms generally were not dependent on the price of one or two products for their income and neither were they without profitable work to do when the one or two products did not need attention. Hudelson pointed out in discussing the diversified systems followed on these farms.

Another factor which the tours emphasized as affecting farm profits and being at least partly under the control of the farm operator was the matter of crop yields, according to Hudelson. The necessity for keeping up crop yields was strikingly brought out when farm after farm selected on the basis of profits earned was found on these tours to be yielding higher than neighboring farms.

"Almost invariably the operator of such a farm was found to be following a rather definite cropping system with a fair share of land in legumes and a high percentage of land in those crops which normally pay best. A very high percentage of these farms also had received some limestone or phosphate or both. These successful farm operators evidently do not believe that the solution of the farm surplus problem lies in producing less an acre. They did show, however, that they were not afraid to turn part of the acres out to legumes in order that the cropped acres might produce more for the labor and money expended."

"Neither were these men strangers to the most up-to-date and well established methods of getting the greatest amount of livestock products from the available feed supply by means of well selected stock kept healthy and handled with a view to utilizing as much of the farm by-products as possible. All were interested in the best established ways of making use of the legumes found necessary in their cropping systems."

Ground Laid for Conference Debate

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 29—(AP)—Charging the public policy committee of Rock River Methodist Conference with lacking courage to include in its reports its views on the Illinois wet and dry referendum and the entrance of Hugh Magill into the senatorial race, Rev. S. H. Wirsching, Belvidere, today appealed to the conference for the appointment of a special committee to prepare a report on those subjects and submit it at the same time the regular committee report is acted on tomorrow morning.

The way was thus paved for what it is expected will be the hottest debate of the session. Rev. A. M. Fennell, Chicago, chairman of the public policy committee, said in answer to Wirsching that the questions he mentioned were too complicated to be included in the regular report but he offered no objection to the naming of a committee to deal with those questions.

The proposition was put to a vote of the conference and carried and Bishop W. O. Shepherd said he would appoint the committee.

The report as submitted condemns the two-gun preacher who usurps the duties of regularly police authorities, demands an accounting of all reform societies especially the Anti-Saloon League; condemns both Smith and Brennan, candidates for senator, and praises President Coolidge for "hands off" policy on the Mexican question.

Flying Days Darling Bomber Probably Over

Dayton, O.—(AP)—A few years ago a little Englishman dreamed of an airship as vast as an ocean liner. Three years ago his dream came true when the Barling Bomber, $400,000 sky giant, the biggest airplane ever built, flew at Wilbur Wright field.

The dreamer was Walter Barling, aviation engineer in the employ of the United States government.

Today the Barling Bomber sits almost forgotten in its hangar at Fairfield Air Intermediate Depot. It probably will never fly again, air officers say. With only five or six flights, many of them short ones, to its credit the Barling Bomber may spend the rest of its days on the ground. Not because it cannot fly, but because it is not necessary.

"The Barling Bomber was an experiment," said an official. "We found out from it what we wanted to find out, and now we're through."

Hot Springs Plans to Celebrate Its Legends

Hot Springs, Ark.—(AP)—The atmosphere of a day when Indian tribes the country over held the "land of the hot waters" sacred, believing that their Great Spirit presided therein, will be revived in a centennial celebration here in 1932, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the creation of Hot Springs National Park.

Authentic Spanish records show that Hernando de Soto and his band of explorers visited the thermal pools in 1541. Legend also has it that the hot springs of Arkansas were the famed objective of Ponce de Leon, when in 1514 he sought the "Fountain of Youth."

The park for formed in 1932 by a special act of Congress. It contains 46 radio active thermal springs.

All the history of the springs will be unfolded in a huge pageant, as a feature of the celebration. A thousand persons will participate in the spectacle, sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Everyone who has once used Healo always uses it. Good for aching tired feet. Try it today. Sold by all druggists.

SECRET OF BABE RUTH'S BATTING IS NOW REVEALED

Expert Shows Reasons for Bambino Being Champ Slugger

BY MAJOR HOOPLE
New York, Sept. 30—Egad, folks, here I am writing baseball. Not that it should be unusual, as I once took part in a yodeling tournament held in Hemenway, Switzerland, and won it hands down, or tonsils down, as one inclined to be humorous would say.

Not that yodeling has anything to do with writing baseball, but I just mention it to bring out the fact how versatile I am, yes.

First of all, I am glad New York won the American League pennant, as it puts me in a position to be near the 15-mile limit. And I am overjoyed beyond words that St. Louis carried the honors in the National League, as that flourishing township is needed for its institutions devoted to the highly delicate art of brewing.

Being an expert puts one in the embarrassing position of predicting the winner of any sporting event. Of course you will understand, nothing embarrasses me, except my usual financial situations.

Nevertheless, I go on record this very minute of forecasting that the St. Louis Cardinals will win the title of world baseball champions! Egad, if I prove wrong at a later date, you can call me to task for the prediction. I leave immediately after the last and deciding contest to hunt moose in northern Canada.

I will excuse the moose for a few minutes and grant you the privilege of taking me to account for my rash judgment of proclaiming St. Louis to the world as winners, should they lose.

While I am not a betting man, I am willing to wager the old and honorable Hoople crest and family coat of arms against any foreign made custom-built town car, that the team I mentioned wins the baseball classic, by Jove!

In an exclusive interview with Mr. George Herman Ruth, sometimes referred to as "Babe" Ruth, I am in a position to give to my readers (if any—interfered by linotype operator) the secret of Mr. Ruth's ability to hit home runs.

Mr. Ruth uses a special baseball bat made out of discarded long distance telephone poles. These poles have been in the habit for so long of doing things in a big way that even when whittled and shaved down into a baseball bat, the natural urge is to be the means of hitting the baseball long distance. Mr. Ruth is merely the operator. Egad!

Geneseo Working Hard for Dixon

Geneseo—Geneseo high school football players are practicing daily, rain or shine, in preparation for the first battle of the season—that between the local boys and Dixon on next Saturday. Dixon has a good team and the game should be an interesting one.

Bleachers will be ready for the use of the public for the first time Saturday—furnishing seats for 300 fans.

About thirty players reported for regular evening practice last night at Shaw's field. The ground was somewhat muddy, and when the team returned from the workout the green and white colors appeared black.

Although the teams have not been picked, several of the boys have been working for a certain position on the team, as follows: center, R. Redus, R. O'Connor and G. Johnson; guard, W. Farnum, W. Atwood, H. Faber and C. Fritch; tackle, A. Bradley, W. Yelzer, C. Kennedy and H. Peterson; end, O. Hamlink, R. Shelen, D. Obrecht and A. Sears; backfield, A. Kowitz, F. Kleener, E. Schultz, J. VanDemore, D. Michaels, D. Ward, W. Taube, L. Goss and M. McKenzie.

Different Captain in Each Game at Millikin

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 30—(AP)—As Millikin's football captain-elect did not return to school this fall, Coach Leo Johnson has decided to appoint a new captain for each game. The captain will be appointed at the beginning of each week and will serve until the end of the week's game.

Bostic, star halfback of the 1925 eleven, was declared scholastically ineligible on the eve of the final practice for the Charleston Normal game here Saturday. Steigemeier or Sockler, a freshman, may be used in the place.

Ask Dixon to Enlist in Football League

A call has been issued for a meeting in Clinton at 8 o'clock Saturday night to organize a football league among the towns in this vicinity for the coming season. Men from Dixon, Elgin, Aurora, Ottawa, Spring Valley, Springfield, Dubuque, Clinton and Burlington, Wis., have been invited to the conference to make arrangements for an Illinois-Iowa professional football league of Legionnaires.

EACH TEAM HAS NINE PITCHERS READY TO WORK

Cards and Yanks Have Boxmen With Impressive Marks

New York, Sept. 30—(AP)—There will be no advantage in numbers when St. Louis and New York pitchers are counted in the world series. Each club has nine in condition. St. Louis has a total of ten, but an injured hand will prevent Johnson's participation.

Pitchers with impressive records are found in each camp.

Herb Pennock of the Yanks has won the most games, 21. Flint Klem has one behind Pennock, however, has lost eleven games and has a percentage of .656. Klem, with seven defeats is rated 741.

Garland Braxton, with six victories and one defeat, leads both clubs in percentage figure with .857. In spite of this excellent advantage on paper, he is not expected to start a game although he may do some finishing. The leading pitcher of the Cards in terms of games won and lost is Jess Haines, whose thirteen victories and four defeats entitle him to a percentage of .765.

Arthur Reinhart, who will almost certainly fire his left handed shoots at the Yanks in a game or more, has won twice the number of games lost.

Walter Reuther, during his term of service with Washington and New York, turned in fourteen victories while experiencing eight defeats. Urban Shocker, former star St. Louis Brown who has pitched against the Cardinals with success in city series games, has won nineteen games while losing eleven. Willie Sherdel, counted on to perform mighty deeds for Hornsby's crew, has compiled a record of fifteen games won and twelve lost.

Bob Shawkey, who has carried his red undershirt into four previous world series is above the 600 mark with eight games on the right side of the ledger and five in the red ink.

Vic Keen, former Cub, won ten games while losing eight for St. Louis and Waite Hoyt, veteran of three world series won fifteen and lost thirteen.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, only Cardinal pitcher to have been under fire in a world series, has a season's record of twelve games won and ten lost, but the first part of his work was in the uniform of the Cubs.

Sam Jones, who has had the novelty of world series won off by appearances in three barely shipped under the wire over the 500 mark with nine victories against eight defeats.

Herman Bell, winning five and losing the same number, Allan Sothoron with three victories and the same number of defeats and Hallahan who won two and lost three, complete the Cardinals staff.

FOUR PENNANTS IN EIGHT YEARS HUGGINS' MARK

Despite Success Very Little is Known of Yank Manager

New York, Sept. 30—(AP)—Miller Huggins has brought the New York Yankees to the top of the American League playing heap four times since he joined the club as manager in 1918. Twice the team ran third under his management; once it finished fourth, the first year that he was at the helm, and last year is bogged down to seventh place when the team cracked and crumbled from sheer old age.

The feat of bringing the Yanks back to a pennant from a seventh place club in one season might establish Miller Huggins as a miracle man. But the Yankee pilot is still plain Mister Huggins who sits back in the dugout and simply manages. Huggins eschews the limelight; is rarely seen on the coaching line and as he seldom talks for publication, fans know little of him. When things go wrong Huggins gets the blame; otherwise the credit goes to Babe Ruth & Co.

Huggins is a student of baseball. Small of stature he made his mark as a smart bat player when he made his debut with the St. Paul club in 1901. Three years later Huggins found himself with Cincinnati, his home town, where he remained until 1910 playing second base. Traded in 1910 to St. Louis, Huggins four years later succeeded Roger Bresnahan as manager of the Cardinals.

His successes with second rate ball players was the talk for years in the National League circuit where he twice brought his club up to third place. It was while Huggins managed St. Louis that Rogers Hornsby came to the club, a youngster from a Texas town. Huggins saw at once that he had a star in embryo. He personally corrected Hornsby's batting stance and saw the young Texan rise to baseball stardom under his own guidance.

Huggins this year confounded the experts. Few picked the Yankees to finish even in the first division. Two holes in the infield to be plugged up, shortstop and second base, and with a rookie first baseman with less than a year's experience, the task for the midget Miller looked hopeless. Koenig a shortstop obtained from St. Paul, played only a few games with the Yanks at the end of the season and he was a problem. Lazzeri bought from the Salt Lake club, was made over into a second baseman. Koenig, with a high strung temperament and always over anxious, demanded Huggins' constant attention but Lazzeri fitted into the keystone without difficulty.

With much coaching and tutoring the defense held together while the teams heavy batting carried it along to victory.

HOFF WILL SUE ATHLETIC UNION FOR BARRING HIM

Claims Union Officials Influenced Immigration Authorities

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 30—(AP)—The Times says that Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vault champion, has filed a suit for $100,000 against officials of the A. A. U. charging that they have influenced U. S. immigration authorities to order him from this country at the expiration of his temporary admission October 15.

Hoff said the suit was filed yesterday immediately following receipt of a letter from R. M. Day, commissioner of immigration, New York Harbor, informing him that his application for an extension of a permit to remain in America has been denied and that it would be necessary for him to leave this country on Oct. 15.

The vault king, at the time he turned professional recently with a dance and vaulting act on a vaudeville circuit, insisted he was forced into professionalism in order to earn a living.

An attempt to take out naturalization papers brought the information that he must first return to Norway, Hoff said, and wait three years before he could make application to become a citizen.

The A. A. U. suspended Hoff last May for failing to appear in a meet in San Francisco. Athletic Union officials claimed they barred Hoff for his own good.

Root and Cubs Drub Sox in First Battle

Chicago, Sept. 30—(AP)—Bent on revenge for a drubbing in the first game with the Cubs, the White Sox invited their National League rivals to Comiskey Park today to resume the annual city series.

Close to 15,000 fans sat through a dismal afternoon to watch the Cubs, winners of the 1925 series, ride to a victory over the American League club on Charley Root's baffling twists. Eddie Collins used three moundmen in a vain effort to avert a 6 to 0 decision.

King Albert Gives Up Autos for Motorcycle

Brussels—(AP)—Albert, King of the Belgians, rigorously obeying his country's economy laws as an aid in budget balancing, eating only black bread instead of white, also has given up the use of his three automobiles to save gasoline.

The King was riding from his palace to his Brussels "office" on a motorcycle. He was exceeding the speed limit. Two gendarmes stopped him, demanding to see his papers. When they read the driver's permit they found it was made out to "Albert of Belgium."

The policemen, somewhat flustered, were put at their ease by the King saying:

"You are right. The King has done wrong. But you will excuse me, this time, won't you? I am a bit late for work."

Berlin—(AP)—To give the ex-Kaiser's progenitors the "once over" the famous "Siegesallee" in the Tiergarten has been equipped with a series of scaffolding giving the drive the appearance of a building plot.

For the two long files of marble statues which the late Emperor had erected to immortalize his genealogical tree, from the first Elector of Brandenburg down to Emperor William I. have become sorely in need of repair. Here a nose of some historical ruler, there a finger, an ear or a broken sword are to be patched up. But most of all does the illustrious company require a thorough washing and scrubbing.

GARY FINDS HIS BIGGEST DELIGHT IN HIS FARMING

Head of Steel Corporation
At Home With Cows and Chickens

BY JAMES HASWELL
NEA Service Writer

New York—The world knows Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, but this is to introduce Elbert H. Gary—farmer. Judge Gary will be 80 years old October 3. There will be much speculation as to his possible retirement as head of the Steel Corporation. What he says, or what his corporation does, sways the financial world. But Mr. Gary's greatest delight now is in the raising of cows, chickens and ducks.

Farmer's Interests, His
From his office in the financial center of the world in lower New York, his thoughts are directed to the business that has made possible the building of skyscrapers and railways and the creation of the vast urban civilization of today. At his home, on a Long Island farm, he is concerned with the same problems that interest any farmer—crops and the welfare of his livestock.

Interviews with Judge Gary, head of the Steel Corporation, are rare. Words are carefully chosen and weighed, with a thought to the influence they may have. An interview with Farmer Gary is something else. This is to get down such an interview. It was expressed in homely phrases. There was a note of joy and pride in the farm, as it was discussed. And a kodak album was produced by Farmer Gary to illustrate his talk.

"Buttercup's horns have grown longer since this was taken," he mused, turning the pages. "One of them died not long ago. It nearly broke my heart."

"Here is the old team," coming upon a photo of himself holding the bridles of two dappled grays. "I think they were better matched than the pair we have now."

Judge Gary's eyes are clear and his hands firm. His shoulders were erect beneath his gray suit. His tie flaunted a bit of color.

Pigs Liked Attention
"There," he said, coming to one of himself viewing some Poland China hogs. "Those pigs got so friendly they'd come up to let me scratch them with my stick. See."

"But I don't keep pigs any more," turning a page, "here I am watching the ducks on the pond. Here's the chicken run. These are some of the fields."

There were other pictures, of Judge Gary and his cows, with his favorite horses, walking in the gardens. Over each one he commented as if to himself.

As he talked, his interest grew, and he turned to other parts of the book. Lisbon, Madrid, Valparaiso appeared, as well as photos of industrial marginals of half a dozen nations.

"There's Charley Schwab," he chuckled, at one point. "We were watching an airplane at West Point. My, how serious he looks!"

"And here I am with Mrs. Gary at a polo game. No, this is better. It looks more like her."

The purchase of his farm, Judge Gary reveals, was brought about by the war. For nearly 20 years prior to that he had spent his summers in Europe, traveling and collecting art treasures.

Gary's Daily Schedule
During the conflict vacations were impossible. In 1919 he found himself with leisure time, but unwilling to resume his trips. The purchase of Ivy Hall followed. Other millions called for his homes estates, but Gary's is "the farm." It comprises 110 acres, 10 from here he commutes to business in New York.

Now a question about that often-suggested retirement. It is Gary the unresponsive business man who answers.

"I am grateful for what I have received and enjoyed," he says, "and also I am hopeful of the future."

He yields, though, to talk about his personal life.

"I have never answered such questions," he says, "but I realize the interest people take. I guess the time is here when I shall have to."

A typical outline of his day, as he drew it up, follows:

7 to 8 a. m.—Shaving, bathing, dressing.

8 to 8:30 a. m.—Light breakfast.

8:30 to 9:30 a. m.—Reading newspapers.

9:30 to 10:30 a. m.—Going to office, reading mail.

Then up to 4 or 4:30 p. m., or later—dictation, consultation, attending meetings, and so on.

In the evening his amusements he said, comprised "The theater occa-

Eleanor Patterson, daughter of Joseph Medill Patterson, Chicago newspaper publisher, has been dubbed "the millionaire nun" by German theater goers, for whom she is playing the Madonna in "The Miracle." Miss Patterson arrived at Salzburg with two limousines, 34 trunks and a train of servants, and took an 8-room suite at the hotel.

Schoolteacher Molded Gary

His farm is his greatest personal interest today, although he does not neglect his famous collection of art objects at his Fifth avenue town house.

No small tribute to his mental honesty, is his listing as the man who had most influenced him, Horace Barnes, teacher of the country school near Wheaton, Ill., which Gary attended as a boy.

Barnes was an exceptional man. Few of his students ever forgot him. At 92 he still wrote to them, Gary among them—joyous letters on the beauty of life as he was finding it.

Second on his list of mentors Gary placed J. Pierpont Morgan, who financed the creation of the steel trust.

Third, Gary named Theodore Roosevelt. Gary, too, disapproved of "malefactors of great wealth" and insisted he was making U. S. Steel a "good trust" instead of a bad one.

Fourth, Gary named his father, Erasmus Gary, who emigrated from the ancestral home at Pomfret, Mass., to found what has grown into the town of Wheaton, Ill.

Thinks "Yankee Doodle"

Sprang from the Dutch

Cherokee, Iowa, Sept. 30—(AP)—W. L. Endicott, student of archaeology and of languages, believes that "Yankee Doodle" originated in the Netherlands. He says the words of the song came from "Yonk Heer Doodle," an old Dutch air.

"Yonk Heer Doodle," Mr. Endicott states, "was intended as a contribution to annoy the Yonk Heers or young lords." In America it is supposed to have been first rendered by a British drum corps, largely for the purpose of giving the American New Amsterdam contingent a military rating founded on ridicule. The name "Yonk Heer" is American-Indian, a corruption of "Yonk Heer" by the aboriginals who inhabited the vicinity of New Amsterdam.

"The Indians, accustomed to hearing the Dutch citizens greet each other as 'Yonk Heer' arrived at the deduction that all white men were 'Yonk Heer.' 'Yonk' was the best they could make of it."

ARGUMENTS OVER STATE OF UNION WAXING HEATEDLY

Existence of Prosperity
Keynote of Main Arguments

Washington, Sept. 30—(AP)—The argument over the state of the union and particularly the existence of prosperity in the United States continued unabated today between official spokesmen of the democratic and republican parties.

With their eyes set upon the November elections to decide the complexion of the 70th congress, Senator L. C. Phipps, Colorado, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, said "this is a republican year," while Senator Thomas F. Bayard, Delaware, treasurer of the democratic senatorial campaign committee, characterized his Colorado colleague as an "unconscious humorist."

"The people," Senator Phipps asserted after a White House conference with President Coolidge, "have undiminished confidence in President Coolidge and believe he should be supported by a majority in congress which will help him maintain the most abundant prosperity the country ever has had under a republican tariff." Senator Bayard said that this statement would be received by western farmers "with their tongues in their cheeks."

Otes Wage Cutting

In the latest wave in the sea of campaign propaganda Senator Bayard asked whether Senator Phipps "is the only person in America unaware of the fact that the 16,000 employees of the Amaskeag Manufacturing Company of New England declined only last week to accept a cut in wages which the company dangled before their eyes for the alleged purpose of getting contracts."

Senator Phipps countered with the statement that "the situation looks good in Massachusetts," where Senator William Butler, chairman of the republican national committee and personal friend of the President, is opposed by former Senator D. I. Walsh.

From New England generally, from the far west and from the middle states, Senator Phipps said, "we hear of no movement away from President Coolidge and therefore from the candidates of the republican party," but Senator Bayard asserted that "agriculture is admittedly flat on its back" and added that the rural population "is upwards of 47 percent of all our people."

No National Issue

The democratic party, Senator Phipps concluded, "has reached the state where it is a party national only in its pretensions and without a single national issue on which it can stand with any hope of success," while Senator Bayard declared that "nearly one half of our population has for five years past carried the bag politically and financially for the republican party," and asked whether Senator Phipps "thinks that such statements as he gave out today will be ratified when the ballots are cast in November."

Some spice was added to the debate by the statement of Senator Charles McNary, republican, Oregon, and member of the special campaign executive committee, who was ready to submit his report on the Pennsylvania and Illinois inquiries in December.

The report, he intimated, would deplore the expenditures made on behalf of Representative William Vare and Frank L. Smith, republican nominees, and also may be expected to criticize the political activities of the Anti-Saloon League.

BYRON MAN TELLS HOW HE GOT INTO ROCHELLE TROUBLE

Claims He's Victim of Circumstances; Not a Car Thief

Byron, Ill., Sept. 29.—Alfred Grabow, prominent local auto dealer and lodge man, held under bond to the Ogle county grand jury yesterday on charges of breaking into and robbing freight cars, declared here today that he is the victim of circumstances and explained how he was found with William Norton and Frank Welsh by railroad detectives and arrested.

The three were arrested Monday night by Sheriff S. N. Dodson at Rochelle. Norton and Welsh are transients without any definite address.

Out on Bond
They are held in the county jail at Ogle county but Grabow has been released under bond pending investigation by the next grand jury.

The Byron man, who is about 35 years old, married and the father of a child, told authorities that he was driving toward Rochelle Monday night and that he stopped to give a man a "lift."

He experienced engine trouble a little later and returned to Rochelle to have the motor repaired. His companion returned with him and when Grabow mentioned returning to Byron the stranger asked if he would wait until he obtained his clothing and that he would go with him.

Repairs Engine
Grabow consented and while the man went for his clothing Grabow repaired the engine himself. After waiting for some time Grabow says he started toward Byron. He found the stranger waiting by the side of the road, he says, and just as the man was putting his baggage in the car the detectives appeared and placed both him and the stranger under arrest. The third man was found nearby and he, too, was taken into custody.

Special guards were posted in the Rochelle train yards several nights ago when several cars were looted. Detectives found several hundred dollars worth of merchandise stolen from the Rochelle freight yard, in a cache and Norton and Welsh were first apprehended there. While they were being watched from ambush Grabow's car appeared and one of the men began loading some things in his car.

Norton is the man who was in the Stephenson county jail for some months awaiting trial in the United States district court on a similar charge of obtaining merchandise from freight cars under interstate seal, and at the time of his arrest a railroad detective shot a man said to have been his partner in the robbery whose identity was never solved.

Norton's war record and the months that he had served while awaiting trial had a bearing on the disposition of his case when brought before Judge Cliffe in federal court later.

Hurricane Makes Lake of Plaza

Every Mexican city has its plaza. Here is the plaza at Vera Cruz, now inundated by water blown in from the gulf by a hurricane, which took a heavy toll of life and property in the Mexican seaport. In the background is the beautiful Cathedral of Vera Cruz.

GAMBER PLANS CAMPAIGN OF FIRE SERVICE

Fire Prevention Week Throughout State Begins Sunday

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—State Fire Marshal John G. Gamber, will address half a dozen civic clubs in the state during Fire Prevention Week, October 3 to 9, he announced today. Peoria, Danville, and Springfield are on his itinerary.

"Chambers of commerce," he said, "in many cities, are arranging practical programs. Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, and Optimists will devote their meetings next week to fire prevention in numerous communities."

"A number of Women's clubs will proceed with the necessity of preventing fires through school programs. Fire chiefs are taking a leading part in the observance all over the state."

"Following the suggestions in Governor Small's Fire Prevention Week proclamation, we are driving for a practical observance in every city. If we are to reduce the fire losses, we must find the fire hazards where they are, and get rid of them. Careful inspections by fire chiefs and local officials will bring this about. This should be done not only during Fire Prevention Week, but should be continued regularly throughout the year."

"We are trying to get our cities to pass ordinances which will bolster up their building codes and control all fire hazards. Every community should regard the fire problem as one of its most important ones."

"We hope the spirit of Fire Prevention Week will reach every citizen. If each citizen would see that his home and place of business is made free from fire hazards, and then kept free from them, the fire loss in Illinois would be materially reduced this winter."

OPTIMISTIC

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

There are plenty of ways you can get into trouble. You worry about it and make it seem double. Your mind plays around with whatever it's about, where it ought to be thinking of ways to get out.

How seldom we wonder how far we are getting, by wasting a lot of our good hours in fretting. A wee bit of action, in proper ways, brings the chance for a person to right the wrong things.

There never was a man who has gained very much by fussin' and fumin' and sulkin' and such. When into the channel of worry he swerves he's just a poor mangle who gets on folks nerves.

Snap out of the trance, if you're one of that sort. Make faces at trouble, and be a good sport. The old optimistic game's never a flop. Try playing it, man, and you'll come out on top.

SHADED PASTURE LAND CONDEMNED BY DR. STANARD

State Director of Agriculture Pleads With Farmers

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—S. J. Stanard, director of the state department of agriculture, today asked farm advisers throughout the state to urge owners of woodlands to discontinue the use of shaded pastures for grazing until they are positive that no danger exists—that it is free of snakewood weed.

"This is a drastic measure," Mr. Stanard said, "but the danger I believe, justifies it."

Director Stanard said he considered the conditions reported from various parts of the state, as the most alarming on record, at least within recent years.

"A number of deaths have been reported as the result of cattle eating the deadly snakewood weed," he said. "Postmortem examinations of the cattle that have died from milk sickness show that their deaths were directly attributed to eating the plant."

"Of all the deaths reported, not one has resulted from the use of milk distributors. Apparently, the quantity of milk thus handled is sufficient to dilute whatever trace of the poison may exist in the product of such cows as may be poisoned, and the milk, unsuspected, sold to the distributor."

"The real danger arises when one cow, or a very small herd, ranging in woodlands, contract the poison, and the milk is consumed, direct. This is particularly treacherous from the fact that the condition is frequently undetected in milk cows as the lactation protects the cow."

Joseph Miller was here from the vicinity of Paw Paw Friday and called on business acquaintances.

John Dinges and Frank Delhotel returned home from a few days stay in St. Paul where they purchased a number of carloads of feeding cattle. This is a part of their annual program and is the reason they are successful in this line.

John Nelles was down from Dixon Saturday and paid a brief visit to friends.

William Parsley and Homer Wheeler were here from near Rochelle Sunday and called on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jacobs were here from Triumph Sunday and spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Oester and other friends.

Many of the friends and acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Henry motored to Rochelle Tuesday morning where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Henry who passed away very suddenly while visiting with relatives at Rockford.

Don Harris was here this week from Michigan where he is operating a fruit farm and visited at the homes of his aunts, Mrs. Lydia Knauer and Mrs. Kate Tressler.

The ladies of the domestic science club motored to the home of Mrs. Gladys Jacobs at Triumph, where they enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon.

Auctioneer John Gentry was over from Amboy Wednesday booking sales for this winter. John says that in spite of the farmers poor year there are going to be fewer sales this year than ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gehant and Mrs. Prosper Gander motored to Dixon Sunday where they visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoggard.

Louise Untz was here from Mendota Wednesday on business.

Our farmers were busy all day Saturday picking out their seed corn as the frost had been predicted for that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnickel were here from Mendota Wednesday calling upon old friends and former neighbors.

Warden Finds "Kangaroo Courts" Still Active

Chicago—(AP)—A relic of the trials aboard pirate ships in the days of the Spanish Main persists in almost every jail in the country, says Capt. George H. Weideling, retired warden of the Cook County (Chicago) jail. It is the "kangaroo court," organized and conducted by the prisoners for the punishment of petty offenses among themselves. The "court" exists in every prison and jail he has visited, Capt. Weideling declares.

The paradoxical honor existing among criminals lies at the base of the days of the Jolly Roger, when the penalty was often a walk down the gangplank. Usually the sentence now is a fine of ten or fifteen cents, for such offenses as failing to wash the neck, untidy cell, or petty theft. Sometimes when the crime is graver, the inmates take the "law" in their own hands.

Sheriff Peter Hoffman was convicted of some unannounced sentence during his contempt confinement at Wheaton jail and fined $50 by the "kangaroo court."

The court within the jail is not, as a rule, a makeshift affair, but regularly organized by the prisoners themselves. Capt. Weideling says. Judges, bailiffs and lawyers are elected from among those apparently best qualified. Sessions are held during exercise or rest periods. Collected fines are put into a fund for penniless inmates.

What Europe's Royalty Would Rather be Doing

London—(AP)—One of the weaknesses of Royal personages is to confide to intimate friends what they would most like to do if they were in other person's shoes.

King George, incognito, would prefer to attend a horse race, and mingle with the crowd.

Queen Mary would ride on top of a London bus, all day long.

King Albert of Belgium, would travel in foreign lands and do a great deal of flying.

King Alfonso of Spain, would like to don the garb of a peasant, and live the life of a peasant for a week or two.

The Queen of Spain would appear on the stage.

Queen Marie of Roumania, would travel extensively abroad, write novels and listen to what the people said about her.

The Prince of Wales has never got over his fondness for climbing trees, which was denied him as a boy.

Queen Victoria always wanted to ride on a street car, but she never even had a railway ticket in her hand.

King Edward often proposed to ride in London's underground, but procrastination defeated his aims.

Burial Caskets in U. S. Require 102,000 Trees

Washington—(AP)—Some interesting facts about the consumption of lumber in the seemingly minor industries are shown in studies made by the Forest Products Laboratory.

It was found that it requires

102,000,000 feet of softwood lumber—equal to 102,000 mature timber trees—to make burial caskets used yearly in the United States.

Screens to keep out mosquitos and flies use up 20,000,000 feet yearly, while another 30,000,000 feet goes into signs each year. Pails, tubs, clothes racks, bowls, stepladders, broom handles and other woodenware call for 100,000,000 feet of lumber.

Honey bees require 10,000,000 feet a year for their hives, while incubating eggs and baby chicks need 10,000,000 feet. Toys consumed 2,300,000 feet of softwood, to say nothing of hardwood.

The Forest Service and the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association are cooperating in a campaign of education to have the manufacturers buy in short lengths so the mills may utilize all of the tree in turning out lumber.

You should use Healo. Nothing equals it this hot weather for aching, tired feet.

Paris Bartenders Lay Evil Drink to Youths

Paris—(AP)—Baggy-trousered college boys from the United States have brought the art of drinking to evil days, say the white-coated men who push liquid mixtures across the mahogany counters of Paris "American" bars.

"The cocktails they ask us for are terrible," said Angus, the Scotchman who tends bar at a cafe on the Boulevard des Italiens, beloved of Americans. "They want to compound drinks of everything that stands on the shelves and the result tastes like the explosion of a Big Bertha shell. The gentlemanly days of the scientifically-compounded Gibson, Martini, Manhattan and Zazrac cocktails are gone."

SAINT and SINNER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who stays at home and does all the work for the family of six, including—

Her semi-invalid mother, her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, 21, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT KITTLESON, a married traveling salesman; old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer, and CHRIS WILEY, over whom a girl has committed suicide.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, falls in love with Faith, but she cares only for Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

Pruitt showers Faith with attentions and the family badgers her about him. She protests that she does not love George and will not marry him if he asks her. Preparing for an all-day Sunday date with George, Faith, in hunting for a hat in Cherry's closet, finds Cherry's suitcase packed with nearly all her clothes and locked. The memory of a mysterious telegram received by Cherry from Albert Kittleson fills Faith's mind with tormenting suspicions, but since George has arrived, she has no time to talk with Cherry.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

SNATCHING up the white felt hat that had been crushed under a corner of the heavy suitcase, Faith adjusted it at Cherry's mirror and hastened to the living room to rescue George from the embarrassing questions of her mother.

"Hello, George!" She gave him a comradely handshake. "Where's Junior, Dad? I want to speak to him before I leave."

"Out in the back yard, tinkering with his Ford," her father told her. "Want to come with me and see Junior's store on wheels?" she invited George. "He's awfully proud of being an automobile accessories salesman. He sells to the garage as over the county, direct from the wholesalers, on a commission basis. He sure to tell him his truck body is artistic. He painted it himself."

"They found Junior, in khaki overalls, industriously assorting his etc. which he carried in a big green-and-red striped box, set on the stripped chassis of an old Ford touring car. After George Pruitt had paid the requested compliment, Faith drew Junior aside with a smile of apology to George.

"Junior promises he won't tell you a word to Cherry or to anyone else about this," she began in a low voice. "I told 'im of it, and he asked and looked up in your car until I got home this evening. You're not going to use the car, are you?"

"No, going out with Fay in her new car," he told her, frowning with his wilderment. "Say, what's the kid up to? You'd better tell Dad."

"No, there may not be a thing wrong, and I hate to have her mad at me," and Faith shook her head determinedly.

She was very silent and thoughtful as Pruitt drove out Myrtle street to the state highway. He glanced at her once or twice, his small, bright brown eyes a little moody, but then some of her seemed to enter his own turbulent heart.

"There's peace in just being with you," he told her after a while, during which they had not spoken. "I've got around the world when I was twenty-two, just out of college, and then I fretted away a year in New York, trying to paint great pictures, finding out I couldn't." He brushed his free hand across his eyes, then looked at the girl beside him with a sudden vivid smile that made his homely, strong face almost handsome. "And so I came back to sell wholesale groceries. And then I found what I had been rushing all over the world for, looking for like a crazy person."

"You found yourself," Faith said gently. "That is the only real peace. You took the true measure of yourself, and have come home to live—to live really, deeply, from within not to rush about, chasing will-o'-the-wisps. You may sell wholesale groceries, or radio receiving sets, or Ford parts, or do any one of a hundred things, but if you hold fast to yourself, feed dreams to your soul, worship beauty prayerfully—"

"How did you know?" he asked wonderingly, his freckled, broad hands gripping the wheel hard. "I wonder if you know something else—that I found myself by losing my self?"

"Hasn't that been the way, from the beginning of time?" she asked. "That is the only real peace, what he meant, what his eager eyes and his trembling hands and husky voice were trying to tell her. "Do you mind if we don't talk for a while? I want to think—there's something I have to work out, if I can, alone."

She was thinking of Cherry, of that mysterious packed and locked suitcase, but George Pruitt thought she was searching for her own heart for the exact truth about her feeling for him.

When they arrived at Sulphur Springs, a popular resort in the mountains, George ordered luncheon served at a secluded little table on the veranda of the rambling, rustic hotel.

While they were waiting for their food, he drew a thin, leather-bound book of Shaw's epigrams from his pocket and read aloud to her, his rather thick lips tasting the salt of humor with glibness, his small eyes boring into hers occasion

"There's peace in just being with you," he told her.

"If anxious to see if she 'got' it."

"You know—" he threw the book down as the waiter came up with a covered plate of fried chicken. "I wanted to read poetry to you today, but I didn't dare. These potatoes au gratin look good, don't they? Do you know, I love to see you eat! You never make any remarks about calories and starches and carbohydrates and all that rot. You never fish for compliments, do you? Every other girl I know remarks prettily that she oughtn't to touch potatoes, or white bread, and that's my cue to say, 'Oh, my dear! Why should you diet? You're exactly the right weight! I don't have to listen for cues when I'm talking with you. Lemon for your tea? We're going to have some deep dish green apple pie and cheese for dessert. If that suits you, I know their cook here—she used to work for us—and until you've eaten some of Elsie's green apple pie, you haven't really eaten pie."

How comfortable it would be to live with this man, who had made an art of living, who had money, had always had it, would undoubtedly always have it.

He treated her as a mental equal, despite the fact that he had traveled, had gone through college, had lived in Paris and New York, while she had spent her life in a small inland city, with only a few high school honors to prove that she had any brains at all.

"You look as if you're doing a weighty problem in mental arithmetic," he told her.

"I was—a problem in addition," she said slowly. "And now I have to do another in subtraction."

"I hope your heavy mental labor isn't going to keep you from your fried chicken and asparagus." He kept his voice gay but his eyes were started apprehensive.

"He is all that—a companion, a mental stimulus, a charming, cultivated man, able to give me all the things I've never had and that every girl wants, and—I don't love him."

She concluded her problem in "men tal arithmetic" by making that fatal subtraction. "And it's all nothing, if I don't love him. Oh, I wish I had never met Bob Hathaway!" she told herself with such fierceness that she was afraid for a moment that she had spoken out loud.

"Was the answer—wrong?" Pruitt laid down his fork and leaned across the table to gaze compellingly into her eyes.

"No, I got the right answer. I'm sure it was the right answer." Her voice shook a little. "Oh, George, we're playing a foolish game of cross questions and crooked answers. Let's be sensible. Where are you going to sketch this afternoon?"

"There's a little mountain stream and a three-foot waterfall, about a mile up that road." He pointed off to the right. "Good enough for sketching. But what I'd like to do is to start a portrait of you—sitting on a great bald rock, perched on a mountainside—can you see it over there?"

She strained her eyes, shaded them with her hand. A boulder that looked as if it had merely heaved onto its plume down the mountain side, was etched sharply against the intense blue of the sky. She shook her head slightly.

"Cherry needn't know," he urged. "If I even paint her, to keep her from being jealous. Oh, she's pretty, beautiful. I suppose you'd say, but she simply doesn't appeal to me. Sorry! Now my idea of a picture of you—like this—" he sketches—rapidly on the back of an envelope.

She leaned forward to watch him, so far that her sleek brown head almost touched the rusted shock that made his big, squareish head look bigger than it really was. He breathed deeply at that threatened contact, and his hand shook a little as he added its pencil stroke.

"It's like a feminine edition of Rodin's 'The Thinker,'" she laughed throatily.

Idea was something like that," he acknowledged, "but more specific. You see—the pleasant green mountains of adventure—childhood's adventures—in which she has been happy, carefree. She has come to the jumping-off place, literally—marriage, you know. And as she sits there, on the rock, her last foothold, she broods, yearns toward what lies ahead of her. Children, fulfillment of her nature, the lush green meadows of motherhood and wifehood and complete womanhood, provided she doesn't break her fine, splendid body to bits in the plunge."

"Do you see? I'm not much good at putting things into words, or into colors, either, for that matter. But I believe I could do this picture as it would be done, but there's only one model in the world that could make the picture come alive under my hands. Please, Faith, please!" his voice rose on a pleading, questioning note.

Again she shook her head, dumbly. If she allowed him to paint her—like that—she would be giving him the answer he wanted, and which she knew she could never give.

"I want to see you sketch the waterfall," she told him compassionately. "If she had not met Bob Hathaway—"

Two hours later he kicked over his easel furiously and came striding to where she was sitting in the grass, her strong, straight back against the trunk of a tree, her great, serene eyes drooping with content, her pale face dappled with sunshine filtering through the busy, whispering leaves.

"Faith," he said, dropping down beside her, leaning so close that his breath was hot on her face, "I'll die if I can't kiss you. But it's got to be because you want me. I don't understand—any other girl I should have kissed as soon as I wanted to—Faith, Faith! I can't stand it any longer—"

One of her big cool hands curled gently about his hot cheek. Without a word she lifted her face, offered her steady lips to his trembling mouth. (To Be Continued)

LABOR IN FAVOR LARGER SCHOOLS' FUND IN STATES

Resolution Calls on General Assembly to Provide It

The Illinois State Federation of Labor, at its recent meeting at Springfield, went on record emphatically endorsing a much larger state school fund and its apportionment to the schools primarily for the purpose of equalizing educational opportunity.

After a representative of the Illinois State Teachers Association had spoken to the delegate body on the great inequalities in taxation and educational opportunity in the nearly 12,000 local school districts, the Federation unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the State of Illinois declares that "the General Assembly shall provide a thorough and efficient system of free schools whereby all the children of the State may receive a good common school education;"

WHEREAS, The financial support for the public schools is derived almost altogether from the general property tax;

WHEREAS, The large number of small school districts and the unequal distribution of children and assessable property among them have caused extreme inequalities in educational opportunities and in rates of school taxation, thus nullifying the constitutional provision for a thorough and efficient system for all children;

WHEREAS, These inequalities often cause the poorer school advantages and the higher tax rates to exist in industrial communities where the schools are attended by the children of wage earners; and

WHEREAS, Other states make large contributions from state funds raised by state taxes to equalize educational opportunities, and our own State has a small state school fund that has proved inadequate to effect even an approximate equality; therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, That we recommend and insist upon liberal increases in the state school fund appropriated by our General Assembly until it shall equal 25 per cent of the total cost of the public schools, and that such fund be apportioned to the schools primarily for the purpose of promoting one of the fundamental principles and purposes of democracy, the equalization of educational opportunity; and

BE IT RESOLVED, That we call upon the State Department of Finance to include an adequate increase in the State School Fund in the State Budget prepared for the 55th General Assembly, that we support bills providing for an adequate increase and for a proper apportionment, and that we urge the Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Director of the Department of Registration and Education to endorse and aid our efforts to bring about the enactment of such bills.
